

SchmartBOARD™ NEWS

RoboGames-San Francisco

SchmartBoard was at the RoboGames, June 19-21 at Fort Mason in San Francisco. We got to meet a number of our enthusiasts and convert a number of new faithful users. Here is a photo of SchmartBoard VP, Neal Greenberg(Left) with Mark James, who fabricated this R2D2 unit that was pretty amazing. You almost expected to see Darth Vader walk out at any moment!

RoboGames is the world's largest open robot competition (even the Guinness Book of World Records says so!) We invite the best minds from around the world to compete in over 70 different events. Combat robots, walking humanoids, soccer bots, sumo bots, and even androids that do kung-fu. Some robots are autonomous, some are remote controlled - but they're all cool! As an open event, anyone can compete - this means you.

Beta Testers Needed!

Coming soon, a social network for you, the electronics professional and enthusiast. Solderbynumbers.com will be a place to design your electronic circuits while you create a worldwide circuit of peers. The site will be much more than a social network. It will be a place to collaborate, create, communicate and learn. We need people of all levels of experience from novice to pro. To be considered as a beta tester go to www.solderbynumbers.com to sign up today. The beta test should start in mid-July.

New SchmartBoard Distributor

Curious Inventor now carries the full line of SchmartBoard products. They initially came to our attention because of the fantastic educational videos they have produced for their website and the informative blog. We applaud the people at Curious Inventor for adding value to their online offerings and look forward to working with them.

Happy Independence Day

To our users in the U.S., SchmartBoard wishes you a Happy 4th of July weekend. Our offices will be closed from July 4th until July 7th.

SchmartBoard July Contest Winner

This month's winner of a $30 combo pack is Benjamin Bertz of Juvent, Inc. Make sure you are registered to be our next winner!
